NIELLO

REF. OT - N17 - GR - SILVER, TAUGHT TO HOLD DARKNESS

Where silver is cut, it does not scar. It learns to hold the dark.

For five centuries, silversmiths engraved sterling, fired black alloy into the lines, and polished the metal back until it held its own shadow. The craft was called niello — from nigellus: blackened. This watch keeps that contract: an octagon of 17 × 24 millimetres in 925 sterling silver, corners cut, not curved, its graphite sunburst dial spreading light the way polished silver spreads shadow, framed by round brilliant stones held in metal moved to grip them. THE DARKNESS IS NOT APPLIED. IT IS EARNED.
